

2,531+ Niche Markets: Positioning, Potential & Profitability [in 2020]

Find your niche. Master your market. Pursue your profit.

Over 2,500 niche markets might sound like a lot, but trust us, it's only scratching the surface.

According to ScrapeHero - Amazon alone sold over 119 million different products in 2019 (excluding marketplace vendors).

Imagine how many subcategories you can divide those products into, and you'll see that the number of potentially profitable niches is much more than the standard 30–50 that most bloggers recommend.

Navigating this vast ocean of potential niche ideas is virtually impossible for a beginner.

That's why we've used our keyword and niche research expertise to create a reliable list of more than 2,531 profitable niches.

You can use the list to start your own blog, niche site, or even a podcast.

The list includes niches that are perfect for affiliate marketing, Amazon FBA, dropshipping, eCommerce, info-products, membership sites, and more.

What Are Good Niches?

A good niche is a small niche market within an industry, where it is fairly easy to start a new site or business.

In addition to a fairly low barrier to entry (no barrier often means it's crowded), it must also be possible to monetize the niche. Public affiliate programs with a wide selection of products are always a good sign.

A good niche also needs to be an area where you can differentiate yourself from major competitors (like industry magazines) by focusing on a small section, or a unique target audience.

A few examples:

- Japanese gardening
- Weight loss for retirees
- Career advice for veterans

Of course, the best choice for you depends on your experience and skillset (more on this later).

Let's dive deeper into the building blocks that make up a good niche, and how you can find one.

What are the characteristics of a good niche?

There are multiple factors at play that decide whether a niche is a good choice to start a business in or not.

Search Engine Volume

Are enough people searching for keywords relevant to this niche?

Answering this question is the foundation of niche research for many marketers.

To check the search engine volume of any niche idea you have, you can use Google's free Keyword Planner tool.

If you want more data on organic search competition and SEO, you can use a tool like SEMrush, Moz, or Ahrefs.

Are people passionate about this niche? Does the target market care enough about this niche topic to spend time considering brands and open their wallets?

If you want to set up a niche site or business, people need to care about your topic. To find out if people care, you can analyze the online presence of competitors.

A few useful indicators are:

- There are active online communities, forums, subreddits, or Facebook groups devoted to the topic.
- People are actively posting about niche products and challenges on social media.

You can easily check the levels of engagement by doing a quick search on Facebook, Twitter, or Reddit.

The screenshot shows a Facebook search interface for the term "leather shoes". The top navigation bar includes the Facebook logo, a search bar with "leather shoes" entered, and links for Home, Create, and user avatars. Below the navigation bar, a horizontal menu lists various categories: All, Marketplace, Posts, People, Photos, Videos, Pages, Places, Groups, Apps, Events, and Links. The "All" category is selected.

On the left side, there is a "Filter Results" panel with the following sections:

- POSTS FROM: Radio buttons for "Anyone" (selected), "You", "Your Friends", "Your Groups and Pages", "Public", and a link "Choose a Source...".
- POST TYPE: Radio buttons for "All Posts" (selected) and "Posts You've Seen".
- POSTED IN GROUP: Radio buttons for "Any Group" (selected), "Your Groups", and a link "Choose a Group...".
- TAGGED LOCATION: Radio buttons for "Anywhere" (selected), "Arakawa", "Bergen, Hordaland", and a link "Choose a Location...".
- DATE POSTED: Radio buttons for "Any Date" (selected) and "2020".

The main content area displays a list of groups under the heading "Groups". Each group entry includes a profile picture, the group name, member count, post frequency, and a "+ Join" button.

- Genuine Men's Leather Shoes: Group · 8.8K members · 70 posts a day · + Join
- LEATHER SHOES: Group · 5.4K members · Hi Dear... · 20 posts a day · + Join
- High End Shoes: Group · 4K members · a niche group to share well made shoes from around the world · 20 posts a day · + Join

Below the groups list, there is a page entry for "Leather shoes" with 1.2K likes and a description: "We deal in all types of ladies and gents shoes in all over Pakistan with free delivery".

At the bottom, there is a post from "React" (25K likes) dated May 18, titled "Leather Shoes 2020 Fullsize - Free tekpe Buynowwww", with a small image of a shoe.

On the right side, there is a language selection menu with options: English (US), Norsk (bokmål), Norsk (nynorsk), Español, and Português (Brasil). Below this are links for Privacy, Terms, Advertising, Ad Choices, Cookies, and More, along with the Facebook copyright notice for 2020.

A quick Facebook search reveals that leather shoes have at least three groups with thousands of active members.

That's a good sign.

Affiliate Products and Programs.

Are there affiliate programs available for the niche?

If you can't promote products as an affiliate, you'll have a hard time effectively monetizing your niche site.

You can check out our list of the best affiliate programs to see if they include your niche.

If not, a quick Google search will often give you the answer you are looking for.

About Featured Snippets Feedback

Bloomingdales, Clarks, and Eddie Bauer all sell leather shoes.

Now we know that there's potential to monetize.

It's not impossible to negotiate exclusive deals in industries without public programs, but you'll need a large platform to have the leverage.

Experience

Do you have foundational knowledge or experience to help you create unique and valuable content for this niche?

You need to be able to produce (or at least plan) a lot of genuinely valuable content to set up a new niche site. Do you know the necessary terms, jargon, struggles, and solutions to deliver real value to your visitors?

If you find a great niche that interests you, it's possible to learn on the job (and target other beginners), but already having experience in the area can give you a leg up over the competition.

Competition and eCommerce Activity

Are there at least indirect competitors online?

Again, a preliminary Google search will often show you what you need to know.

Feedback

Fashion and shoe retailers and manufacturers like Zappos, Macy's, Amazon, and The Frye Company dominate the SERPs. At least for the generic keyword.

This shows that there is some eCommerce activity in the niche, but there are no direct competitors to be seen.

Through further searches like "leather shoe care" and "best dress shoes for men," it's still hard to find a direct competitor.

The closest is men's fashion websites dedicated to old-school looks like suits.

This could indicate that the niche is simply too narrow for a non-manufacturer to venture into and isn't a good niche for you.

If you're still confused, check out our post dedicated to the topic of what makes a good niche.

What Are Evergreen Niches?

An evergreen niche is a subcategory of an industry that has long-lasting appeal. It doesn't rely on seasons, memes, viral videos, trends, or other short-lived fuel for demand generation.

Instead, evergreen niches appeal to fundamental human needs or desires.

The easiest way to understand what an evergreen niche is, is to go through an example of the polar opposite — a trend-based niche.

The fidget spinner is a great example of a trend-based niche.

Just look at the Google Search Trends for the term:

At its peak, in early 2017, it supported many eCommerce dropshippers and small private label retailers.

But it wasn't sustainable.

In just a few months, the search volume and retail demand dropped by over 90%. Today it's not even a blip on the gadget market radar.

After all, it was just a trend, not a necessity.

Weight loss, on the other hand, ties directly into three fundamental human desires.

- The desire for health and longevity.
- The desire for personal growth.
- The desire to be liked and accepted.

And those are desires with a lasting appeal:

Google Trends tells a completely different story here. Sure, there are some seasonal swings, but there will always be people wanting to lose weight.

Evergreen niches also typically have their own fully functioning ecosystems online.

If you take a closer look at weight loss, you'll see that this is the case. There are thousands of dedicated niche blogs, endless products, and supplements on sale, many robust affiliate programs, and more.

Niches tied into fundamental needs and desires are much more likely to stay viable over the long run.

That's the essence of an evergreen niche.

Nichehacks

A niche is essentially a subcategory of a larger industry that you can use to position a new website or company.

For example, a large niche of the health and fitness industry is weight loss. This category encompasses millions of sites and businesses, so it's almost hard to even call it a niche.

From there, you can further narrow down the niche by targeting a specific geographic area, audience group, or product or service category.

For example, running for weight loss, or weight loss for seniors.

A micro niche is narrowed down by multiple of these verticals, for example, category and geographic area or audience group.

For example:

- Calisthenics for contact sports athletes in Las Vegas.
- Weight loss with the ketogenic diet for men above 40.

The beauty of a micro-niche is that your target audience will feel like you made your site just for them.

That makes it easy to find an early audience and community, and get your niche site off the ground.

How Do You Find a Profitable Niche?

You might have read through all 2,500 plus of our ideas, and still feel unsure which niche to select.

If finding a profitable niche was as easy as looking up a list, closing your eyes, and pointing at random, we would all be millionaires.

Unfortunately, to get it right, you need to consider a lot of different factors. Not just your own experience and skills, but also the budget, time-frame, competition, market demand, and more.

Consider Your Existing Skills, Interests, and Problems

This is an old piece of advice, we know.

But it's a lot easier to write about something you know, and keep going with something you like, than starting completely from scratch.

What better way to start a weight loss site than documenting your own weight loss journey (as a man over 40/retiree/diabetic)?

What better way to make money than from something you already like doing? For example, a sport like golf, a hobby like gardening, or something else.

Write down three different lists on a piece of paper (or in a Google doc):

- A list of your existing skills.
- A list of your interests, hobbies, and things you like doing.
- A list of your problems, like being overweight, having back pain, having tens of thousands in student debt.

This should give you a starting point.

You don't need to be diehard passionate about something to turn it into a business. That's a myth.

But you do need to be able to keep going for weeks or months with minimum discernable progress.

Interest helps with that.

See What Already Works In The Marketplace

Still can't come up with anything? It's time to look at successful niche products in the marketplace.

One of the best places to start is Amazon. Almost anything that gets sold on the web also exists on Amazon.

Plus, you're already guaranteed that there's an affiliate program since Amazon Associates includes the majority of Amazon products.

By simply clicking through their departments, you'll eventually find several possible niche markets.

This can be a good place to find some general ideas. But you don't need to promote a best selling product to become a successful affiliate.

Look At What People Are Searching For

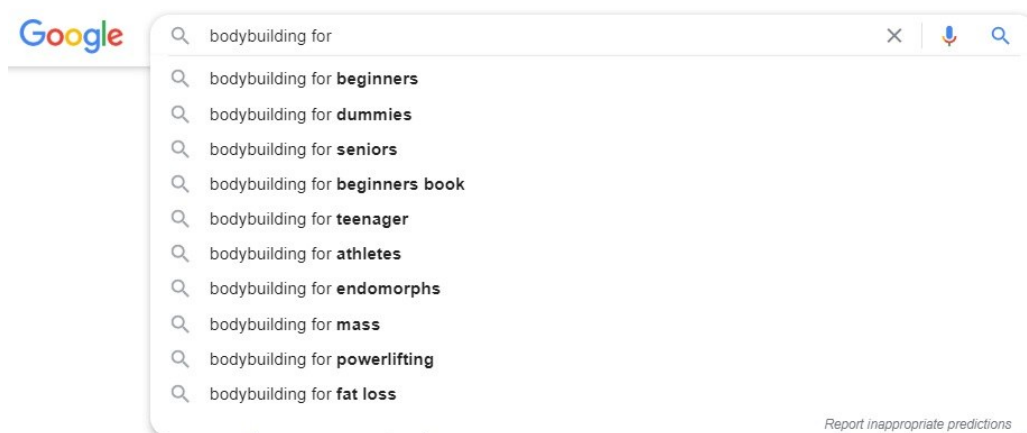

Finally, you want to look at what people are searching for.

If you don't have any ideas at all, you can look at Google trends for major topics you're interested in.

If you look at related queries, you'll see trending topics and keywords for the location you are searching. For example, air fryers and spirit cooking are two topics that are trending under the cooking umbrella in the US.

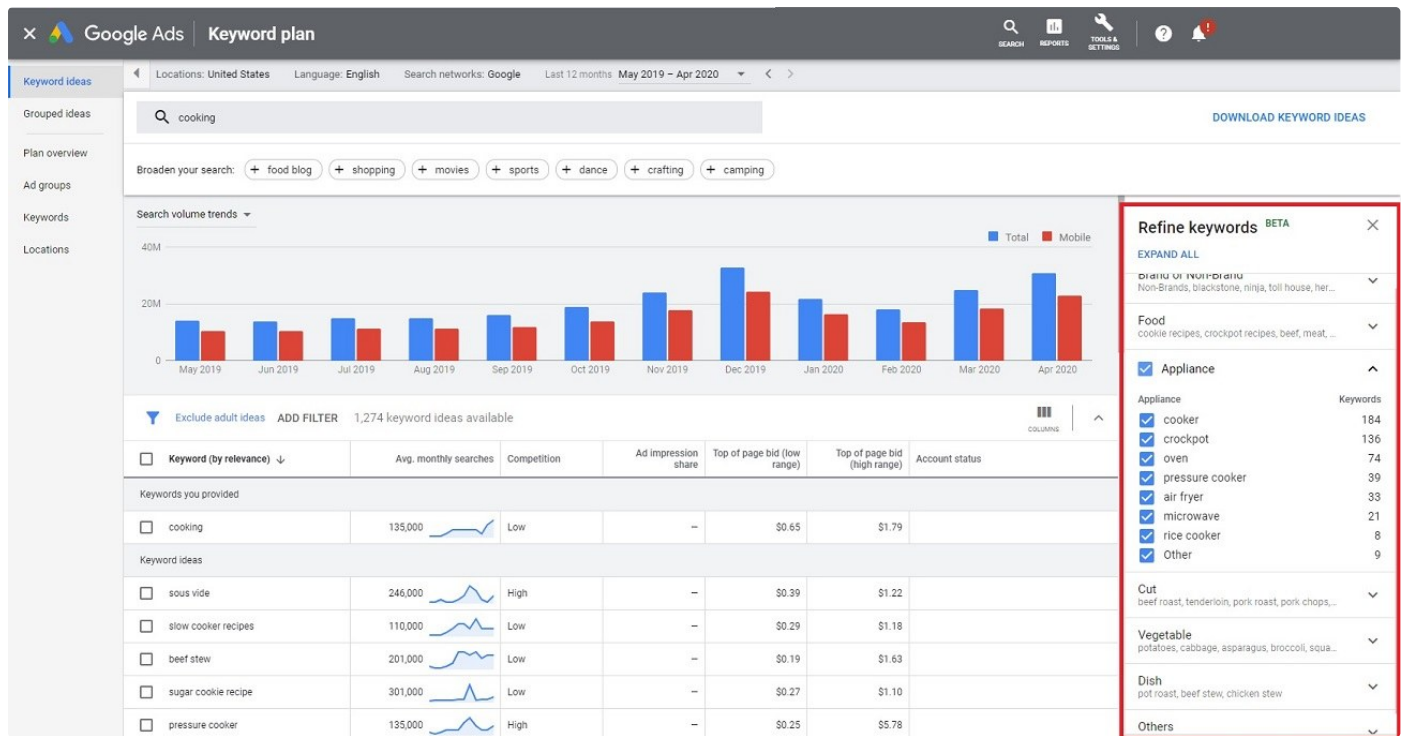

If you already have a general industry in mind, you can use Google autocomplete to come up with niche ideas.

You can try to type in your industry plus the word "for". For bodybuilding, this turns up a few different potential niche markets, including bodybuilding for beginners, and bodybuilding for seniors.

In Google Keyword planner, there's a new tool in beta in 2020 that can help you sift through the hundreds of related keywords as well.

It's the refine keywords tool.

It divides the related results into different categories to help you navigate and find relevant keywords.

Don't Go Too Narrow: Some Competition Is a Healthy Sign

A good way to find low-competition niches is to do keyword research and explore the search terms with lower monthly search volume.

The lower the volume, the lower the competition also tends to be.

But the key is finding the right balance.

FINDING LOW COMPETITION NICHE

SEARCH TERMS (MONTHLY SEARCH VOLUME)

You want to target a very specific niche with low competition but still enough demand to support your future business.

At just 1,000 searches per month, you would need to convert almost every single user that visited your niche site.

If you've narrowed down your niche so far that there's no relevant competition, it might be because there's not enough space for a successful business to exist in that micro niche.

Finding a profitable niche isn't easy. Chances are you're still struggling to make a decision.

That's why we developed the definitive guide to finding a profitable niche market.

In eight chapters, we show you how to go from no ideas, to finding the right niche, all the way to starting your first business.

What Is The Most Profitable Niche?

The most profitable niche for you depends on your unique skill set, experience, and your connections.

For example, even though web host affiliate programs pay higher commissions, Steve Kamb, founder of Nerd Fitness, likely would never have reached the same level of success in that niche.

Who is Steve Kamb?

- Favorite Hero: Superman
- Raised on: Nintendo, Star Wars, and Indiana Jones
- Wanted to be: the next Karate Kid
- Favorite games: Legend of Zelda: Link to the Past and Earthbound

He took his background, a former skinny nerd who had managed to whip himself into shape, and used it to create a platform.

He included sci-fi references, and frequent cameos by lego figures to make his guides more accessible and engaging to his target audience.

BECOME A JEDI: HOW THE FORCE CAN HELP YOU GET IN SHAPE

By Steve Kamb • Last Updated: December 28, 2009 • 48 comments

Want to learn the ways of the Force?

Good, you're in the right spot. Here is your step-by-step guide to using to becoming a fitness Jedi master. Yes I realize this might sound a bit ridiculous, but hear me out. Instead of light sabers and billowy robes, I'll be discussing how to get you in the best shape of your life...and into pants that fit.

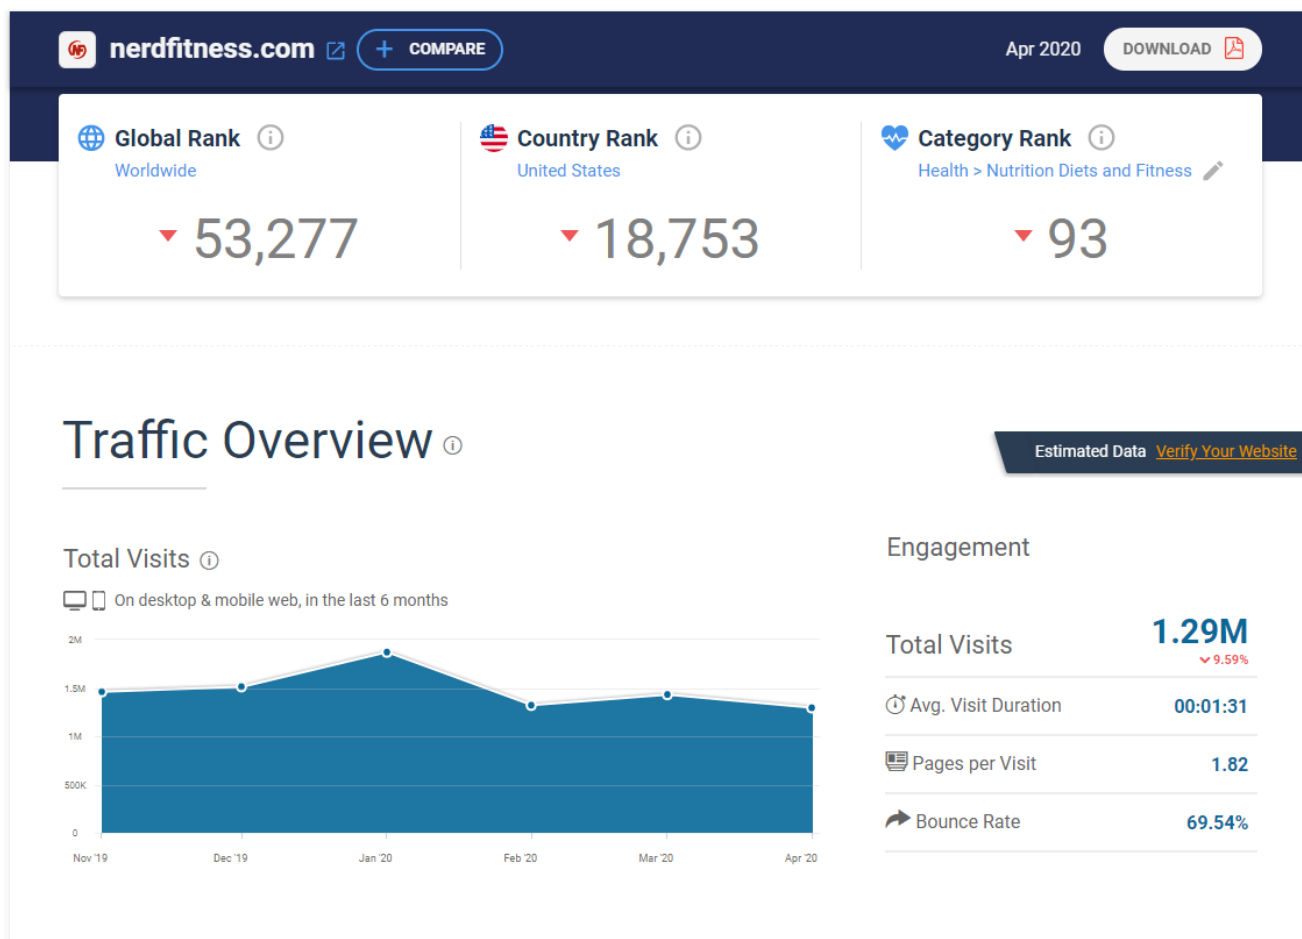

YOU MUST UNLEARN WHAT YOU HAVE LEARNED

This helped him carve out a niche where there basically weren't any relevant affiliate programs.

But through a combination of ebooks and affiliate links, he was able to fund working on a dedicated course for two years.

When he finally launched the Nerd Fitness Academy, it did \$150,000 in revenue in just four days. More than most affiliates make in a year or their entire career.

Today, Nerd Fitness is one of the top 100 most popular fitness sites in the world.

So it's not just the affiliate payouts or competition that decide what niche is profitable.

You definitely have to consider your background and skill set, and which target market would resonate with your character the most.

That said, there are some niches with much higher affiliate payouts than normal. If one of them overlaps with your skills or experience, you might have found a winner.

We cover a selection of high-paying niches below.

15 Best Niches with High Profit

Final Thoughts

Because there's almost an endless supply of potential niches for you to start a business in, taking the first step can seem incredibly daunting.

But without choosing a niche, you won't ever be able to achieve your goals of starting a side hustle, lining up passive income streams, or quitting your day job.
